

Propelling your hit generation by partnering with the library expert

At your service to boost your hit generation

A journey of successful drug discovery starts with finding the right library. Let's walk down the path together, to explore how our unique offer can accelerate your drug quest. We manage all project details so that your budget, expectations and timing stay on track.

Imagining your library together

At Edelris, we partner with you to examine your needs and probe your target. Collaborating openly and communicating regularly, we shape for you a library from our catalogue of compounds, or evolve your own custom library for you. Adding our compounds to your library, you are ready to tackle the next generation of hits.

Catalogue or custom, you choose

Our Keymical Collections™ has 25,000 compounds in stock that are novel, tractable and that regularly explore the new chemical space, giving you a higher chance of finding a lead. After signing a confidentiality agreement, you receive the full catalogue.

For a custom library, we start from our chemical space or from brand new ideas. Your library is created either for HTS compounds and fragments, or new modes such as covalent binders, molecular glues, Protac and chemical biology probes. Production can reach 20,000 compounds a year.

Step by step, side by side

For your compound library, we start by investigating ideas together and translating them to the wet lab to create a compound. After validating and assessing scope and limitation, we settle on a central core that can be scaled and diversified. We then enter the production phase to provide you with high quality, high purity compounds for your screening program. Reporting to you on a weekly or biweekly basis, you always stay informed and can modify or adapt a project's advancement, direction and success.

At Edelris, you'll find experienced chemists who listen to you, and are committed to creating a library to your standards, on time and on budget.
